

A Wonderful Fish or Beast that was lately Killed, by James Stewart, as it came of its own accord to Him out of the Sea to the Shore, where he was alone on Horse-back at the Harbours Mouth of Dingle-Icoush, which had two heads and Ten horns and upon Eight of the said Horns about 800 Buttons or the resemblance of Little Coronets; and in Each of them a set of Teeth, the said Body was bigger than a Horse and was 19 Foot Long Horns and all, The great Head thereof Carried only the said ten Horns and two very large Eyes, And the little Head thereof carried a wonderful strange Mouth and two Tongues in it, which had natural power to draw it self out or in to the Body as its own necessity required; there is several other very remarkable things to be observed in the said Monster, and in particular it had a Reddish Colourd wrapper or Mantle growing and Sticking fast to the Back thereof, and the Laps on both sides was loose, which was white within & Red without. Therefore all persons who desires to be further satisfied in the truth hereof, may see the said little head & two of the said Horns with the Coronets thereon, and a draught of the whole as it appeared altogether alive, with a certificate from responsible hands, and a real Relation of all the passages, witnessing the truth thereof, to their farther admiration, at the Three Castles on the Lower end of Cork Hill.

Allowed by Order.

Yesterday I went to see part of the Sea Monster, which was taken at Dingle, viz<sup>t</sup>. the two Bigg Hornes and the little head, the Hornes are neare foure feet long, and about six Inches thick towards the Root, and full of little Coronets, about the compass of a great, and teeth in every one of them they were six to the Horne, with a string like a Veine, by which I conceive they received Nourishment rather then that the nourishment should be conveyed through them downe the Hornes to the Beast.
 The head was not soe bigg as my fist, the mouth and two hard Shells upon it very black and shap'd somewhat like to an Eagles Bill, but broader, ~~then~~ In the mouth there was two tongues, and (as the Man declared that tooke this Monster) the Beast had naturall power to draw this head in or putt it out of the Body as necessity required.

In a Letter from a very Sober person in Dublin Dat 27th Dec<sup>r</sup>. 1773

NATIONAL LIBRARY OF
 IRELAND

Some Observations

Some observations on the Monster which the Sea threw out at the Mouth of Dingle Harbour in the County of Kerry

The Monster or Sea Beast may represent the 4th beast or Roman Monarchy.

The tenn Hornes upon the Head of the Beast, the tenn Kings of Europe

The little Crownes upon the Hornes, the severall Kings which have succeeded one another in the said tenn Kingdomes since the Rise of the Beast

NATIONAL
LIBRARY OF
IRELAND

The little head which issued out of the great head, the papall Authority, who tooke his Seate in the Head of the Beast, to whome the great Beast gave his Seale and Authority.

In which little head are two tongues, by which may be understood the Division of the Church of Rome in the Greece and Latins, or the Blasphemy against, and pretensions for, Christ, coming out of the same mouth.

obs. 1

The crownes on the Hornes seemed to be alive after the beast or Monster was dead, Soe may it be said the tenn Kings will be, for the Scripture must be fulfilled, which saith that they shall hate the Whore. &

2

That these crownes on the Hornes have teeth, and through them was the Nourishment conveyed downe the Hornes to the Beast, It is by these crownes that beast hath bitt, and its from them that the pope hath received his Nourishment

3

Two of the tenn Hornes had noe crownes, Scotland and Ireland which are reckoned two of the tenn have none being now included in England, though they had Kings at the rise of the Beast

4

That hee is of the name of STEWARD that kille the Monster, Our Royall King whome God Bless and preserve hath given the pope (I hope) a deadly wound not to be healed

ens
ast
st
hem
rom
d
s e s e